

I oppose moves to allow consolidation of media outlets into fewer and fewer hands. This may be the market approach, but the results will be undemocratic and antidemocratic. The public interest is best served by allowing as many voices as possible to have access to the citizenry through radio, television, newspapers, magazines, and the Internet.